Brian Gilbert

Brian is an executive director with more than 25 years of environmental, safety and engineering experience. He leads the environmental and sustainability team within Ernst & Young's Fraud Investigation & Dispute Services practice and has developed and managed regulatory compliance programs at both the facility and corporate level.

Brian has extensive experience in assessing operational and regulatory compliance risks related to environmental, safety and security matters. He is also experienced with assessing environmental estimates as they relate to financial statement audits. Brian is a mechanical engineer and is an experienced project and process engineer. He has helped clients in multiple industries including aerospace, chemicals, manufacturing and utilities.

Brian received his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Clarkson University. He is also a certified professional environmental auditor.
