

Jason Mark Anderman

Jason Mark Anderman serves as counsel at Becton, Dickinson and Company. Previously, Mr. Anderman practiced at the law firms of Paul, Hastings, Janofsky & Walker and Goodwin Procter. Mr. Anderman's practice has included providing general advice to business units comprising several hundred million dollars of revenue annually, managing procurement agreements for a diverse array of goods and services, negotiating life sciences and diagnostic instrument sales transactions, providing health privacy law advice, as well as facilitating litigation and dispute management. Mr. Anderman currently co-chairs the Law Department Purchasing Consortium's Procurement Group, and serves as Vice-Chair of the Association of Corporate Counsel's Law Department Management Committee. Mr. Anderman graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1992 from Washington University in St. Louis. He received his J.D. and M.A. (Cultural Anthropology) degrees from Duke University School of Law and Graduate School, respectively, in 1997.