David Wetmore

David Wetmore has 20 years' experience delivering operations and technology solutions to Fortune 500 legal departments. He has extensive knowledge in all aspects of discovery management and is a frequent speaker on trends in electronic discovery.

David's experience includes managing complex, multi-thread projects targeted at advancing the strategic objectives of the client organization. He has led projects to successfully address in-house and outside counsel information, communication and collaboration needs, using revised business processes and leading-edge technology solutions.

His projects have included knowledge management, discovery management and legal management solution design and implementation. David also works closely with in-house counsel and compliance personnel on records retention, with particular emphasis on email retention.

His approach emphasizes the points of business integration among related functions and roles. David holds a bachelor's degree from Northwestern University.
